

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Briefings on Inability to Comply with Section 6050M of Internal Revenue Code

this subject. Also in attendance was Lenore Mintz of the Department of the Treasury. 2. I explained to Wold that projects which begin as unclassified can become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which i classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be Intelligence Agency, presented the view of the Department of Defense (DoD) of this subject. Also in attendance was Lenore Mintz of the Department of the Treasury. 2. I explained to Wold that projects which begin as unclassified can become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which i classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a this subject. Also in attendance was Lenore Mintz of the Department of the Treasury. 2. I explained to Wold that projects which begin as unclassified can become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which i classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be
2. I explained to Wold that projects which begin as unclassified can become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which i classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be
2. I explained to Wold that projects which begin as unclassified can become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which i classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be
become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which i classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be become classified. I provided the example of a contract to procure an unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which is classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be unclassified study which, when added to material learned from others which is classified, then becomes classified. The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be
The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be
The problem is that revealing the subject matter of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be
of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be of some of these contracts would be a problem, and one cannot distinguish between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be between the contracts which are problems and those which are not except on a case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be case-by-case basis. In addition, all of the Agency's contracts would be compiled in one data base, with the listing accessible to unauthorized users

